WOMAN IS KILLED IN IRISH RAID

Three Government Officers also Victims of Ambush in Galway Sunday; Liverpool Homes are Raided and Set on Fire.

DUBLIN.—By The Associated Press—Premier Lloyd George, says the Freeman's Journal Monday, has offered to meet Eamonn De Valera, or other Irish leaders, without conditions. Mr. De Valera, adds the newspaper, replied that if the premier made such a statement public, he (De Valera) would give a public reply.

DUBLIN.—Three government officers and the wife of one of them were shot and killed in ambush Sunday night at Ballyeirn, four miles from Gort, County Galway.

The victims were District Inspector Bulke and his wife, Captain Cornwallis and Lieut. McGreery. The captain and the lieutenant were attached to the Seventeenth Lancers.

The party was riding in a motor car when it was ambushed by forty men.

Military and police reinforcements sent to the scene were fired upon and one constable was seriously wounded.

Irish Soldier Executed

CORK, Ireland.—Daniel O'Brien, of Knockandbane, Liscarrol, County Cork, was tried by drum-head, martial Saturday and executed in the Cork detention barracks Monday morning.

O'Brien met death bravely, maintaining the same attitude that he displayed at his trial when in answering the request to plead, he replied: "I have no defense; I was caught as a soldier and you can try me."

A few women in the vicinity of the prison offered prayers as the execution was carried out. O'Brien was attended by a priest yesterday.

Raid Liverpool Homes

LIVERPOOL.—Six houses in widely separated parts of this city were raided and set on fire by parties unknown last night. The occupants of every house thus visited have relatives serving in the royal Irish constabulary. The inmates were in some cases gagged and bound, the furniture was drenched with kerosene and set on fire and in some instances the helpless people were left to the mercy of the flames by the raiders who fled in automobiles.

The raids were in all ways similar to those made in suburban districts of London and in this city Saturday night.

Women are Frightened

One house that was raided was occupied by Mrs. Jennins, a widow, and her daughter. The latter opened the door when there was a knock and she was seized by the throat by the intruder. She struggled and fled to her mother and then fainted. The women were too horrified to raise an alarm.

In another house were three sisters who were overawed by a dozen men who displayed revolvers and threatened to shoot them if they stirred. The men then ignited the furniture and fled. A neighbor saw the flames and upon going to the house found the women's clothing burning from fires that had been set in bedding. Firemen arrived in time to save the buildings. Two men who tried to seize the fleeing raiders were stabbed, but were not seriously injured. In another house a man 70 years of age was attacked and beaten with a poker. He was then gagged and bound and clothing and bedding piled on the floor and ignited. The man's aged wife collapsed, but he, while bound, managed to struggle to a police station and give an alarm.

Sailor Attacks Raiders

A retired sailor named Wilson grappled with a raider when his home was entered and in spite of his 77 years, threw the intruder to the floor and held him until another raider placed a revolver to the old man's head and threatened to kill him. Wilson thereupon abandoned the struggle but his dog attacked the raiders and prevented them from setting fire to the house. When the raiders ran, the dog chased them but was shot dead. A sailor named Brailsford, who lost a leg in the famous naval raid on Zeebrugge, refused to throw up his hands when men broke into his house, but threw a small sewing machine at the intruders, who fled, firing several shots as they left the house. None of the raiders have been arrested.

HEAVY FROST DAMAGES MANY GARDENS IN THIS VICINITY AND FRUIT TREES ARE HURT

Gardens and orchards were badly damaged in this vicinity by frost Sunday and Monday mornings, according to reports received at the weather bureau.

Tomatoes, beans, berry plants, apple trees and grape vines suffered the worst as a result of the frost. Corn, peas, onions, lettuce and the hardier vegetables weathered the cold spell in splendid shape. Many gardens in the vicinity were badly blighted. The temperature fell to 31, or one degree below freezing point, Monday morning.

ORCHARDS IN DOOR COUNTY SUFFER BUT LITTLE FROM FROST

Brown and Adjacent Counties are Hard Hit Reports Green Bay

STURGEON BAY, Wis.—Pear, plum and apple orchards in Door county suffered little from the killing frost which fell in that county last night, according to W. S. Bailey, county agricultural agent. Several of the larger growers reported Monday morning that no great damage was done to their trees. Mr. Bailey said that the warm air in the orchards probably saved the cherry trees from a greater damage.

The temperature in some places in Door county went as low as 24 degrees. About 500,000 cherry trees are now in bloom in the county.

Brown County Hard Hit

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Damage estimated at thousands of dollars was done to crops, gardens and orchards in Brown and adjacent counties by the killing frosts of Saturday and Sunday nights. According to reports received by the local weather bureau the alfalfa crop was particularly hard hit in the drop of the temperature and heavy frosts. The large cherry orchard, one of the largest in this section was hard hit, according to an official report, which stated that the low temperature of the past two weeks had damaged the trees to about fifty per cent.

Troops Arrest Five in Mingo Mine Warfare

WILLIAMSON, W. Va.—Kentucky militiamen recently arrived in the Williamson fighting zone have started combing the wooded mountain sections and already have arrested five men, according to reports reaching Sheriff Elnson's office Monday.

For the present, it was said the militiamen will devote their efforts to apprehending those who have been engaged in the fighting but will make an effort to locate the base of supplies from which point arms and ammunition have been produced, according to officials here.

Little firing was reported Monday along the battle line between McCarr and Rawl.

INCREASE IN VALUE OF ASSETS TAXABLE HOLDS U. S. COURT

Government Wins Contention that Such Profits Must be Reported

WASHINGTON.—The government won today in the supreme court its contention that increased value of any capital asset must be considered in a corporation's profits when taxes were computed.

The court's decision was given in the appeal of La Belle Iron works from a ruling of the treasury that ore lands purchased for $190,000 in 1904 must be returned in the 1917 report at $10,000,000 and a profits tax paid o nthe difference. The opinion sustained this ruling.

"The meaning of the act as to invested capital is clear," the court said. "It was to cover actual cost of property, disregarding anything that does not change the form of the investment."

Hundreds of millions of dollars in excess profits taxes were involved in the case which was characterized by a high government official as "the most important legal suit affecting federal finances to arise in several decades."

The court was unanimous in its decision except that Justice McReynolds concurred only in the result. Associate Justice Pitney read the opinion.

STUDENT IS SHOT BY NIGHT PROWLER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—John B. King of Washington, D. C., a student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was twice wounded early Monday by a supposed burglar. He said he was awakened by a noise in the adjoining room of his brother, Gilbert King, a Harvard student, with whom he roomed in Drayton hall. In seeking the cause of the noise he encountered the intruder. They grappled and King was shot twice. His wounds, in the shoulder and thigh, were not considered serious. His assailant escaped.

Beckwith of Clinton, brakeman, was killed, Engineer Joe Dolak and Fireman Lyle Tolson, all of Clinton, were injured, about seventeen carloads of cattle killed, and twenty-two stock cars piled up when east-bound Northwestern railway freight train No. 212 was derailed near De Witt Sunday.

SHAFER'S LAWYERS TO PLEAD INSANITY; HEARING ON MAY 26

North Side Man Accused of Attacking Mrs. Gertrude Kane Arraigned Monday

ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY TO CHARGES OF ASSAULT

Dolato Probably to be Returned to Home for Feeble-Minded

Henry Shafer of the north side, charged with assault with intent to commit rape, was arraigned before County Judge Brindley for examination this morning. Shafer pleaded not guilty. The case was adjourned until May 26.

Shafer is accused of attacking Mrs. Gertrude Kane, at the point of Pettibone island last Friday afternoon. Five fishermen, Paul Kisselbach, F. A. Schultz, Ross Appleman, Albert Kelly and Art Tausche saw Mrs. Kane struggling with Shafer and went to her rescue. Appleman overpowered Shafer and held him in Schultz's automobile while he was taken to police headquarters.

Shafer was represented by Mahoney and Schubert. Mr. Mahoney informed the court that he would make his defense on the grounds that Shafer was insane and feeble-minded.

Coming After Dolato

Stanley Dolato, 21 years old, 1731 Winnebago street, who is being held by the police on charges of attacking two girls in the neighborhood of Seventeenth and Ferry streets last Tuesday night, probably will be returned to the state home for feebleminded at Chippewa Falls, where he had been an inmate. An officer from the home is expected to arrive in the city late Monday or Tuesday.

AMERICAN WOMEN IN TURK CAPITAL ESCAPE DROWNING

LONDON.—Four American women engaged in relief work at Constantinople narrowly escaped from drowning in the Bosphorus Sunday, says the Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Mail. They were in a rowboat in mid-stream when it sprang a leak and quickly sank. A Miss Cushman sank but upon rising managed to seize her dog by the collar and the animal dragged her to safety.

Miss Aslers and Mrs. Uhls swam ashore and when safe the latter found she was cultching a bank note with which to pay the boatman, who later, received the money. The fourth member of the party was a Miss Caldwell.

ESTATE TAX HELD VALID IN RULING OF FEDERAL COURT

WASHINGTON.—The estate tax provided in the revenue act of 1916 was held valid Monday by the supreme court in passing upon the appeal of executors of the estate of the late J. Harsen Purdy of New York.

The states of New York, Colorado, Wisconsin, Kansas, Michigan and New Jersey were interested in the case through the collections of the inheritance or succession taxes from the estate. The case was brought to the supreme court by the New York Trust company as executor for Purdy, who died December 18, 1916, leaving an estate of nearly $800,000 net. Various state taxes aggregating $37,000 were paid and under protest the executors also paid a federal assessment of about $24,000 claiming first that the estate tax was unconstitutional and second that if valid it should be estimated after the deduction of the state levies.

HUDSON AND ESSEX CARS NOT TO BE REDUCED FURTHER

The following wire was received by the Bergh Piano company from the Hudson Motor Car company and Essex Motors, of Detroit, last week:

"Statements indicating that we are about to reduce prices on Hudson and Essex cars are without foundation. When we reduced both cars last fall from two hundred to four hundred and fifty dollars, we anticipated market changes that have since become effective. You can use this message with your trade whom we know purchase Hudson and Essex cars on their merits."

INQUIRY SHOWS WRECKED TRAIN WAS DERAILED

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.—Investigation of the wreck Sunday night of the Chicago & Alton "Hummer," in which a score of persons were injured, indicates that the first train between Chicago and St. Louis was deliberately derailed by some unknown persons, according to railroad officials.

A. P. Titus, general manager, absolved the engine crew from blame for the wreck, declaring that the train apparently had a clear track although the switch actually was against it.

La Crosse Shares With World Unusual Display of "Northern Lights" and Wire Trouble

REMARKABLE displays of "northern lights" which have been seen in La Crosse the last few nights are part of a display that has been noted with somewhat uncomfortable results for telegraph service all over North America and Europe.

In La Crosse the Aurora Borealis was particularly splendid Saturday and Sunday evenings, great dancing curtains of green and rosy colors shimmering in the skies to the north, with occasional bolts of light shooting up to the zenith. The Associated Press and other telegraph wires into the city experienced a good deal of trouble with earth currents induced by the magnetic disturbance accompanying the aurora.

Scientists said on Monday the unusual occurrences were probably due to sun spots.

Tied up Wire Service

NEW YORK.—Aurora Borealis' annual spring frolic with telegraph and cable lines which has interrupted transmission in this country intermittently since Friday continued Monday. The companies expressed belief, however, that the magnetic tremors, popularly known as "northern lights," had nearly spent themselves.

The main trouble Monday was delay in repairing machinery thrown out of commission by the flickering lights. The cable companies reported that many of their receiving coils had been burned out. The wireless stations also were somewhat affected.

Worst in History

Every telegraph company reported serious delay in transmission. The companies in declaring that the influence of one of nature's greatest phenomenons was the most extensive in their history.

Experts who have been working for many years to overcome the trouble termed "earth currents," said they were unable to advance any definite scientific explanation.

"Every telegrapher," said an official of one company, "knows what happens every time the lights appear, but nobody seems to know just why."

Hits Europe, Too

LONDON.—Telegraph and telephone lines in the British Isles and throughout all Northern Europe have been seriously interrupted by the great magnetic storm which virtually paralyzed wire transmission in the United States Saturday night and Sunday. Cables between England and the United States were affected early Monday morning and transmission was badly delayed.

The disturbance is believed to have caused a fire which destroyed a telephone exchange at Kurlstad, a Swedish town about 160 miles west of Stockholm. The building was totally destroyed.

PLAN MEETING OF COUNCIL TO DECIDE ACTION IN SILESIA

Supreme Allied Mission Expected to Meet Soon to Discuss Situation

REPORT LULL IN FIGHTING OVER THE WEEK-END

Poles Still Hold to Territory they Seized

LONDON.—There may be a full meeting of the supreme allied council for the purpose of discussing the situation which has arisen in Upper Silesia as a result of the Polish revolt there.

Dispatches from Paris indicate that M. Briand intends to lay the situation before the French chamber of deputies when it meets Thursday. There has been an exchange of views between the British and French governments but suggestions that a meeting be held have been met with assertions in Paris that it would be impossible for the French premier to discuss the Silesian affair with Mr. Lloyd George until after Thursday.

Advices over the week-end appeared to indicate a cessation of fighting in Upper Silesia, but there was nothing to show that the Poles were withdrawing from regions they occupied during the past two weeks.

Warn Against German Move

BERLIN.—German newspapers express pleasure over declarations made on Friday by Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain relative to the situation in Upper Silesia, but they give warning against a German march into Silesia unless such a movement should be requested by the entente powers. They declare such an advance would result in war with both France and Poland.

"If Adalbert Korfanty should presume to take possession of any disputed territory without permission from the entente," said the Lokal Anzeiger, "we shall be exempt from all our obligations and duties."

"Pending a decision in the matter," declared the Freiheit, "neither German imperial troops nor disguised military organizations have any business in Upper Silesia. Germany does not want a new war and mobilization of government troops would be playing a game of French imperialists."

MORGAN INTERVENES IN SALE OF ROAD IN NORTHERN WISCONSIN

Attorney General Asks Delay to Give Him Opportunity to Investigate

MADISON, Wis.—The state took a hand Monday morning in the hearing before the interestate commerce commission to consider sale of the Wisconsin and Northern railroad to the Soo Lines at a cost of $25,000 per mile. Attorney General William Morgan appeared before the examiner to request that adjournment of the case be taken in order that he might have an opportunity to investigate charges of fraud and excessive valuation.

Similarly the railroad commission is expected to take a hand in establishing the valuation of the Wisconsin and Northern property. Engineers of the road declared its valuation at $4,650,000 on the basis of replacement while the sale price was slightly over $3,100,000.

This estimate is being questioned because of the fact that sale of stock in the railroad was made on December 17, 1920, on the basis of $12,500 a mile after bidding the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago Milwaukee roads and the Soo Line, while on January 10, 1921, the sale was made to the Soo Lines by the purchaser on a valuation of $25,000 per mile.

SENATOR NEWBERRY CALLS ON HARDING

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Senator Newberry, republican, Michigan, who recently resumed his official duties after reversal by the United States supreme court of his conviction for violation of the corrupt practices act, made his first call on President Hadring Monday. With his colleague, Senator Townsend, he asked the president to appoint Fenton R. McCreery of Flint, Mich., to some diplomatic post. Mr. McCreery is a former minister to Honduras.

BONDS OF MISSING I. W. W. FORFEITED

CHICAGO, Ill.—Bonds totalling $75,000 for missing members of the I. W. W. who are under penitentiary sentences were ordered forfeited Monday by the United States district court of appeals. The cases of nine men, including William D. Haywood, who is believed to be in Russia, were affected.

FOUR CRASHES WITH FATALITY MARK WEEK-END

Thomas White, Street Car Motorman, in Serious Condition as Result of Being Hit by Taxi

STREET CAR KNOCKED OFF TRACK BY AUTO AND DRIVER IS FINED

Headon Collision of Auto and Street Car Occurs on Mormon Coulee Road

ONE man dead as a result of a tipover of a small car, another probably fatally injured when struck by a taxicab, and two bad collisions between automobiles and street cars is the week-end record of auto accidents recorded on the police log Monday.

Gus Swanson, aged 60, retired farmer living in Houston, died at a local hospital Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock as a result of internal injuries received when an automobile in which he was riding with two other men, turned over on the State road, near the city limits Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Swanson did not appear to be badly injured when taken to the hospital, but shortly complained of severe internal pains. His condition became serious during the night and death came at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Sandberger Taken Home

William Sandberger of Holmen, who suffered cuts and bruises about the head, was removed to his home Sunday afternoon.

Joseph Meinertz of Midway, owner and driver of the auto, was not injured in the tipover, which was caused, it is claimed, by the driver turning the car suddenly to avoid striking a boy who ran across the road ahead of the car.

Motorman Run Down

Thomas White, 204 Rose street car motorman, was run down by a taxicab of the La Crosse Taxi company driven by Walter Engler, about 5:30 a. m. Monday on the causeway, a short distance south of Monitor street. White was taken to St. Francis hospital where it was said that he was still unconscious at noon, more than six hours after the accident.

White was on his way to the car barn. A driver of a rubber mills bus, who is acquainted with him hailed him and offered White a ride. As White was crossing the causeway, the taxi ran him down. Engler put White in his cab and took him to the hospital.

Trolley Knocked off Track

An automobile, driven by Herbert Waite, rammed a street car at Third and Pearl streets near midnight Saturday. The car was shoved off the track, and the door and step broken off. The radiator of the auto was smashed and the front axle sprung. Waite was fined $27.50 by Police Justice Clint Hunt Monday morning on a charge of driving an automobile while in an intoxicated condition. According to the police George Bolrud was with Waite in the car. Bolrud was not taken into custody.

Another street car had a "battle" with an automobile on Sunday night. A trolley was bowling along on Mormon Coulee road about 9:50 p. m. attending to its own affairs, largely, when suddenly from out of the night roared an automobile. It collided full tilt with the street car, which was going west. The front windows of the car were broken and the fender on the auto was broken. The driver backed the car up and continued on his way, with scarcely a second's pause. Later another automobilist picked up a man's hat at the scene of the accident. Apparently, the driver of the car who rammed the street car was not hurt.

Bike Rider Knocked Down

Mrs. H. H. Hancock was driving her car at Fifth and State street, when she ran into a man on a bicycle. Chief Webber was looking out of his office window at the time. He saw the man and bike go down and the auto pass over the man.

The chief sprinted for the street and reached the scene about the time the man was emerging from under the rear of the auto.

"My gracions, man, aren't you hurt?" asked the chief, as the man scrambled to his feet.

"Well, I can't feel anything," he replied as he brushed the dust from his clothing and went his way.

Cars Crash in Avon Street

Two Fords locked horns at the upper end of Avon street Sunday night.

RELIGIOUS LIFE OF THE BUSINESS MAN TOPIC OF SERMON

Panzlau Declares Religion is Only a Side Issue With Most People

"The Religious Life of the Business and Professional man," was the topic upon which Rev. J. L. Panzlau addressed an audience at the Salzer Memorial church Sunday night. Text: First Timothy 4:8. "For bodily exercise profiteth but little, but Godliness—true religion—is profitable unto things having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come!" Rev. Panzlau said in part:

"Three great passions sway the human soul: to be, to know, to possess. In accumulating things and getting knowledge we are experts, but in being saintly, we are not more anxious than the little boy who was caught by his mother in the jam-closet, his face all sticky, the mother saying, 'Why Johnnie, only last night you prayed to be made a saint.' 'Yes mother, but not until after death,' he explained.

"This is the idea many people have about the value of religion. It is good in sickness, in sorrow, in and after death, but it is of little value in this complex life of ours. But our text declares that Godliness is profitable unto all things and that it has the promise of this life that now is, and that which is to come!

"During that awful struggle in Europe on the firing line men lost their limbs, their sight, their lives, but they found their souls, their creator. They believed in God, the Bible and Prayer, therefore they held the lines.

"You men, who are on the firing lines of your profession and in the trenches of your business life, you are to hold the lines of your manhood and better selves against all assailants.

"The question arises, can a business, a professional man, have a religious, a spiritual life? Can he be loyal to his better self and to the ideals of Christ and stay in business? The difference between the business-world's working code of morals and the ideals which in his secret soul he knows represent right and truth are bewildering him. He knows how hard it is to be strictly honest, to apply the Golden Rule to his competitor, to speak nothing else than the unvarnished truth. A man told me the other day that it was impossible to apply the Christian principle and stay in business. In spite of his declaration I do believe it possible. There are business men in all communities who are putting the high ideals of truth and honesty into their business. If it were not possible our whole business structure would have to be reared upon fraud and falsehood.

"The answer to the question whether a man can carry out the Christ given ideals in his business affairs can only be answered with another question: 'Is he willing to sell his soul?' It is a million times better that his business goes to ruin—into bankruptcy, that his wife and children go begging, than for him to lose his sense of honesty, truth and integrity, to sell his manhood, his character, his soul. The good book says: 'What shall it profit a man if he win the whole world and lose his soul?' Rather lose your business, your wealth, your life of ease and luxury! You say, the price is too great, the sacrifice too exacting I am asking of you for the purchase of your soul.

"Have not men died in countless numbers for country and liberty? Were we not willing to give our sons and daughter the last dollar to win the war?

"Is not all life full of noble and voluntary sacrifice? Do not mothers, fathers, teachers and preachers give unstintingly of their very life blood? Shall the business world be exempt and make no contribution in holy living and selfless surrender to the faith and religion which makes life worth while? Shall it not have its saints and martyrs too?

"Some sell their souls for the madness of ambition, others for the glory of political power, and others again for the love of gold and some for the lust of the flesh. But these things cannot pay for the loss of a soul created in God's divine image which is destined to live with Him forevermore. I am satisfied to know that there are men walking the streets of La Crosse with clean hands and pure hearts whom no gold could bribe nor buy. May God multiply their number.

"Hear what great men have to say on the great need of the hour, 'The need of the hour is not more legislation,' said Roger Babson. 'The need of the hour is more religion. More religion is needed everywhere, from the halls of congress in Washington to the factories, mines, fields and forests. A plan, a policy without a religious motive is like a watch without a spring, or a body without the breath of life. The trouble today is, we are trying to hatch chickens from sterile eggs. We may have the finest incubator, but unless we have eggs with the germ of life in them, there will be no chickens.'

"You cannot rebuild a torn, bleeding world out of the old material at hand. If you could the old world-structure would never have collapsed. We need new minds, new hearts, a new light and life coming direct from God to enable us to build out of new people a new world.

"Listen to what Josefus Daniels, formerly secretary of the navy, had to say: 'The only real and permanent solution of the vexing problems which seem more acute than ever since the end of the world war is the application of the golden rule.' It is either Christ or Chaos!

"The crying need, the most desperate need of our present day-life is the old time religion, old fashioned piety, that would live and act in the very presence of God.

"There are some strong links of life we are all forging, binding us to this world, Sociability, business, education and religion. Our life spans two worlds. Where, then, should we put the emphasis? On the physical? This is valuable. On the social? This is desirable. On the monetary? This is at times advantageous. On the intellectual? This is commendable. On the spiritual? This is of the utmost importance.'

"What links have you forged? Only those which tie you to things, to this world? Or have you forged Faith, Hope, Love, true religious habits which are binding you to God, to Christ, His Gospel, to humanity and Eternity?

"Our towering office buildings, our commercial success, our beautiful parks, our piled treasures of money and science are all of no avail, if the noble ideals of righteousness and true religion are lost, which gave us in the past a womanhood graced with the jewel of Chastity, a manhood honorable and true, a homelife clean and wholesome and a religion that pointed the children of men with a clear note of certainty to God!

"My plea is, Give christianity a chance. It has never been tried. Make a way for true religion, weave it into the very fiber of our everyday life, 'for godliness has the promise of the life that now is and of the life which is to come'."

The Favorite Gem of China

Light green jade is the favorite gem of China, and it is difficult to get the stone in uncut forms even in China. Sometimes a rich Chinaman's estate will consist, in part, of a lump of jade. Sometimes it can be obtained in masses, weighing one pound or two pounds. But even the leading jewelers of Hong Kong usually obtain it in cut form.

In the old China of Empire days soldiering was considered the basest of occupations.

TEACHERS' PENSION FUND COMES BEFORE SENATE WEDNESDAY

In Assembly Interest Will Center During Week Around Huber Irish Resolution

MADISON, Wis.—Chief of bills which will come up for consideration this week is the teachers' retirement fund bill providing a pension system for university, normal an dcommon school teachers who serve 25 years or more. This will receive its first real baptism of fire on Wednesday, when it will appear on the floor of the senate for engrossment.

The retirement fund measure has the almost unanimous backing of the teachers of the state, and hundreds of petitions favoring the bill have been filed with both houses of the legislature. Members who favor the bill in principle but who do not like to assume the responsibility of voting such a large sum at this time may make an effort to submit the whole question to a vote of the people.

In the assembly the chief fireworks will center about the Huber resolution asking the United States to recognize the de facto Irish republic. The resolution has been recommended for passage by the committee on state affairs with only one dissenting vote, that of A. E. Matheson, its chairman.

One more effort will be made by Assemblyman Ingalls of Racine to resurrect his bill providing for a return to a modified system of nominating conventions. The bill does not propose to repeal the primary election law but aims to provide for conventions which would recommend candidates to be voted upon at the primaries, without closing the doors to any others who may desire to be placed on the ticket.

The bill will come up on Wednesday on motion of Assemblyman Jordan of Milwaukee to reconsider the vote by which it was killed last Thursday.

It is very likely that the Grimstad bill levying a surtax upon large holdings of land will also receive its first test on the assembly floor. The finance committee heard the bill on Friday and will probably report the measure to the floor early in the week.

Disposition having been made of the marketing bill by the finance committee it will now go to the assembly for final passage. No further objection to the bill is expected in the lower house, but a determined effort to remove the trade commission features may be made in the senate. The measure was reported out carrying an appropriation of $125,000 but all fees collected by the department of markets revert to the general fund.

Assemblyman Miller's resolution asking congress not to repeal the excess profits tax, which was passed in the assembly without a roll call, is due for some bad sledding in the senate. It comes up for action Wednesday, recommended for indefinite postponement by the judiciary committee.

Cat Rears a Rat

An English naturalist reports the case of a cat to which was given a newborn rat, shortly after all its own kittens except one had been taken away. The cat at once adopted the little rat, "cleaned, fed, fondled, tended it," and treated it exactly like one of its own young. Previous to this experience, the cat had been a noted ratter. Afterwards it hunted rats no more.

We Add 50 Cents to Each Dollar Invested by An Employe

RECENTLY the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) announced a plan under which it is possible for its 25,000 employes to become partners in the business on a very attractive basis.

The publisher of a small newspaper, unacquainted with the motives which animate the seven men who direct the operation of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), wrote an editorial in which he questioned the motives of this Company, and intimated that the plan was a scheme whereby the Company aimed to benefit by getting in this additional capital.

To set right this publisher, and any one else interested, the Company deems it advisable to direct attention to two outstanding features of this plan which are illuminating in this instance.

First, that to every dollar paid by the employe for the purchase of stock, the Company adds, as a gift, 50c.

Second, that participation in the plan is not obligatory, and that in no case is an employe permitted to pay in more than twenty percent of his earnings.

In formulating the employe partnership plan, the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was inspired solely by the idea of benefiting those employes who wish, through systematic saving, to become partners in the business. It believes that the man who works and saves is climbing upward, but that the man who invests his savings wisely is climbing faster. It believes that the employe who has money invested in the business is freer of mind, more contented, and more productive than if this anchor to windward did not exist.

The idea of employe ownership of industry is in line with modern tendencies. The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has always been a progressive organization. Its willingness to receive new ideas has put it in the lead in the petroleum industry.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has developed an efficient, enthusiastic body of workers. Every employe, from the Chairman of the Board of Directors to the man who drives the tank wagon, is working steadfastly to serve the public to the best of his ability.

It is the recognition of this fact that prompted the Board of Directors to inaugurate the plan which enables the employe—whatever his position may be—to become a partner—a factor in the business.

ORDERED BY THE LORD

THE steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and He delighteth in his way. Thou he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down; for the Lord upholdeth him with His hand.—Psalms 37: 23, 24.

What are You Most Skillful At?

IN any first-class machine shop in La Crosse you'll find a tool-maker so skillful that he can "tool down" a piece of steel to as fine as a thousandth of an inch.

That is, he can take a steel rod and remove an outer layer so thin that 1000 of them would be required to measure an inch thick.

Any machinist who can do that is justly proud of his skill.

If you know such a fellow and want to make his eyes bulge, tell him that Prof. Richard Whiddington, of Leeds University, England, has perfected a method for measuring a 200,000,000th part of an inch. He measures by sound waves and electricity instead of a yardstick.

* * * *

"That man Whiddington has marvelous skill!" you say. "Man certainly is becoming a wonder."

Yet, 2100 years ago Cicero wrote that he had seen the entire Iliad (a poem as long as the New Testament) written on a thin piece of leather in letters so small that it could be folded into a nutshell.

If you are interested in that and other marvels of the ancients, read Wendell Phillip's lecture, "The Lost Arts."

Microscopic writing, by means of the pantagraph machine, has been carried to unbelievable perfection.

An Englishman named Peters, using a fine diamond point, wrote the Lord's Prayer on glass in characters so minute that the whole Bible could be written twenty-two times on a square inch. Incredible, you say? It is vouched for by the Royal Microscopic Society of London.

* * * *

The cases of Whiddington and Peters are merely super-illustrations of the marvelous skill which is a characteristic of human beings.

This skill crops out in strangely varied ways in different individuals.

You'll find a genius with wonderful skill at handling a violin—and awkward at everything else.

Some women are so skillful at needlework that their fingers seem almost uncanny.

You'll recall Johnny Baker, the crack shot with the old Buffalo Bill show, whose skill centered in his eye-focusing.

Leigh Mitchell Hodges, of Philadelphia, skilled as a writer, is most famous among his friends for his phenomenally even touch on the typewriter.

Every individual has something at which he or she is skillful.

What are you most skillful at? Probably it is a signboard pointing the way to success and prosperity.

The Drug Vampire

A CAMPAIGN of education to check the appalling spread of narcotic drug addiction in the United States, now second of the world's dope-bound nations, is a crying need if thousands of America's youth are to be saved from terrible enslavement. This secret vice today is authoritatively said to claim between one and two million victims in this country. Every parent, every teacher and every adolescent youngster, at least, should be acquainted with the facts and effects of narcotic habituation.

It is largely because of their ignorance that the dope bootlegger is enabled so lucratively to exploit the curiosity and bravado of youth ready to embrace the merciless vampire. And it is this adolescent questing which, federal drug officials say, is rapidly bringing the average age of addiction down into the twenties. "Kids toying with hell-fire for the sake of a new 'kick'" is the way Director Nutt of the Narcotic Field Force at Washington phrases it.

Not one in a thousand who have become confirmed drug users understood in the beginning that it takes only from ten to thirty days to fix enslavement, and that, thereafter it requires almost superhuman will and courage to break free. Few indeed, ever are permanently salvaged.

The first educational step needed to stamp out this creeping horror is to quash the vicious falsehood, perpetuated since De Quincy's time by a certain school of writers and by imaginative perverts, that the juice of the poppy inspires pleasant dreams; that it opens mysterious doors of life closed to the normal un-drugged mind. That lie—and it is certainly a lie, once addiction to opiates is fixed, according to medical authority—has wrecked millions of lives.

It is not sufficient for the government to attack the traffic through court and police machinery. The pernicious drug disciple of the underworld must be countered by dissemination of the disease facts. Knowledge of these facts will prove the surest preventive.

Sales Tax Joker

THE proposed "overturn sales tax," according to its opponents, would give big business an unfair advantage over small manufacturers.

Take the case of a small concern making steel products. Here's what would happen to it:

Mine sells iron ore to jobber—and pays a sales tax.

Jobbers sells ore to blast furnace. Second sales tax.

Furnace sells pig iron to jobber. Third sales tax.

Jobber sells pig iron to small steel mill. Fourth sales tax.

Mill sells steel billets to small manufacturer of steel products. Fifth sales tax.

Mine sells coal to jobber. Sixth sales tax.

Jobber sells coal to coke oven. Seventh sales tax.

Oven sells coke to blast furnace, steel billet maker and manufacturer of finished products. Three more sales taxes.

Ten sales taxes in all!

They are passed on to the small manufacturer of steel sheets, cold-rolled shafting, etc. While he in turn passes them on to his customers, still these ten sales taxes become a part of his production costs and increase the minimum price at which he can sell.

On the other hand, take an outfit like the United States Steel corporation. In large part, it owns and mines its own coal and iron ore, makes its own coke, pig iron, steel billets and finished products.

No sales tax would appear in United States Steel's production costs.

Result: United States Steel could undersell the small manufacturer whose costs would include at least ten sales taxes.

Taxing the Bachelors

BY R. RAY BAKER

When Cora Haines became a legislator, Alex Carlton gave up.

"It's all over," Alex told himself with a sigh as he sat in his business office that night and read of her election triumph. "She's chosen between a career and me—she has passed out of my life, and the irony of it is, I had to help her do it. My conscience wouldn't have let me vote for her opponent, although I realized I was casting a ballot against myself when I marked the cross in front of her name."

In truth, Alex was discouraged. For several years two blazing lights of ambition had been guilding him into the future. He wanted to be general manager of the Dalton Housefurnishing company, and he wanted to be the husband of Cora Haines. The first ambition he had at last realized, as a result of hard work, but in the second he had failed.

Alex at last was financially situated so he could step into matrimony, but he had no more than got squared away for the venture in question when the young lady who had been his ideal for years coldly threw him over for a political career.

Now he was at sea, his cherished plans were shattered, his soul felt crushed. He did not conceive the idea that he might choose some one else for a marital partner; in fact, he had no other feminine acquaintances who by the widest stretch of imagination could be considered eligible. Only this one girl had won her way into his heart during the thirty years of his earthly sojourn, and he knew there never would be another. He endeavored to reconcile himself to his fate. For the rest of his days he would be a bachelor.

Now, Alex was a wizard when it came to understanding business, but in assailing the problems of the feminine he registered zero. Making love is not like selling chairs, and he should have used different tactics. Cora had not thrown him over, and if he could have changed his perspective he would have realized it. During the four years he had been calling on her, not once had he even so much as hinted at marriage. He was waiting till he made a financial success of himself, and he took it for granted that she understood that. If there had been more of the romantic and less of the business instinct in his nature, he would have proposed first and then got out and hustled for the dollars.

For a long time Cora had been talking of a career. She was twenty-five and she said it was time for her to pick out her life's work. Alex felt somehow that was his cue to hint at the plans he had in store for her, but he found himself unable to put his thoughts into words. Several times he tried it, and all this time her campaign went forward, and before he knew it she was chosen at the primaries and then in the regular election. He could view it in no other light than a plain case of being tossed aside in favor of a career.

Alex's disappointment was keen, but he made the best of it, and threw himself into the business whirl with just so much more earnestness, with the results that success mounted upon success, his salary increased and the future looked bright indeed—provided he didn't stop to think about the girl that had thrown him over for a career. He tried to dismiss her from his life, but he couldn't keep his hands off the newspaper and they kept him in touch with her legislative life.

One day business carried Alex to the capital, and it happened that the legislature was in session. He promised himself faithfully that he would keep away from the state house but when his business had been transacted and he found a half day left on his hands, he couldn't help wandering in the direction of the capitol.

There he walked about the capitol grounds, and finally he went inside and looked at the curios in the museum, and then he ventured into the Senate; but there was no excitement in the upper house, so he walked to the other end of the building and peered into the lower legislative chamber. There was some kind of a debate on and it made him curious, so he mounted to the gallery and took a chair. He didn't scan the floor of the house too closely, but his eyes couldn't help picking out the only feminine member of the assemblage. He felt guilty, but eased his conscience by telling himself repeatedly that it was a public session and he had a perfect right—indeed, it was his duty—to be there. Too few citizens interest themselves in their governments.

The debate was hot. The state's funds were running low and some means were being sought to replenish the coffers; and some happy married legislator had hit upon the plan of placing a tax on bachelors.

"Huh!" growled Alex, when he learned the cause of the debate. "That's a fine idea! Make a fellow pay for being single. What if he can't find a wife—like me? What they ought to do is tax the girls who turn down men who want to be their husbands."

The negative side of the argument was getting the best of it. It happened there were a number of bachelors who held seats in the House, and they arose to air their grievances over such an unjust, discriminating liberty-stealing law. As the speaking went on it became apparent the assemblage was waiting to hear from the feminine member, and finally she rose to her feet.

"Mr. Speaker, and my worthy colleagues," she said, "it is my opinion that a tax on bachelors is the proper method to raise funds needed by the state. Not only does the commonwealth require more money, but it needs more marriages. A tax on bachelors would make some of the old grouches get out and get a little sunshine into their lives by the marriage license route. Such a tax would prompt many to marry, and it would help to make brave a large number who wish to wed but haven't the courage to ask. I have in mind the case of a young lady who loved a man for four years and waited patiently for him to propose to her. But he was a business man, and he kept so busy chasing the dollars that he didn't have time, or the inclination or the courage to ask her to be his wife. If he loved her he never showed it. Probably he had the old-fogy idea that he must wait until he had crowned himself with a halo of dollar signs before he made overtures to her. What he needed was tax on bachelors. That would have appealed to his business sense, and no doubt the couple would be happily married by this time. I am heartily in favor of the tax on bachelors and will cast my vote for the bill."

This speech seemed to clinch the matter, for the vote was taken and the House expressed itself in favor of the proposal. Immediately afterward the body adjourned for the day.

Alex found Cora in her hotel. He sent up his card and she received him on the mezzanine floor.

"Well I see you've decided to make us poor fellows pay for living alone," he observed after they had shaken hands.

"We certainly have," she said warmly. "It's now up to the Senate, of course, but it's coming all right."

"I happened to hear your address this afternoon," he went on, "and that part of it having to do with a fellow's courage struck me as being peculiarly fitted to my case. So I came right here to ask you in plain, unvarnished words whether you'd be willing to give up this career idea and save me from paying a bachelor's tax."

"You heard me!" she exclaimed, apparently startled. "Well, now, Alex I rather like this career idea, and really I can't think of giving it up."

Alex's heart, which had been thumping violently, seemed to stop.

"But," the lady representative continued, "I see no reason why I should not also save you from the bachelor's tax, if you wish it."

To herself she added: "Especially since I made that speech for your especial benefit today having seen you in the gallery."

Whatever Alex's shortcomings, it could not be said he ever failed to embrace an opportunity and as the mezzanine floor was all but deserted he lost little time in embracing this particular opportunity.

All gold found in Tibet belongs to the Lama church.

Concerning Money

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

The congregation sang out of a recent hymnbook:

"Lord, I care not for riches, neither silver nor gold;
I would make sure of heaven, I would enter the fold."

They all lied.

Every one of them cared for riches. The cash-girl on $5 a week wanting $6, and the man who owned one railroad and wanted another, all cared for money.

The minister in the pulpit had to have money next day to pay the grocer, and the leader of the choir was not unconcerned with the problem whether he could get enough money out of his singing or must devote part of his time to other work.

The man who says he does not care for money is untruthful. Every man ought to care for money.

But there are some things which money will not buy. And they are the best things in life. Sunshine and fresh air come free.

Lowell wrote:

"For a cap and bells our lives we pay.
Bubbles we buy with a whole soul's tasking.
'Tis heaven alone that is given away,
'Tis only God may be had for the asking.
No price is set on the lavish summer;
June may be had by the poorest
comer."

People who quote these lines commonly omit the last couplet, thus restricting the lesson, by inference, to things of the soul. But the summer as well as the soul is of the things which money cannot buy.

Let us have no cant about it. We need money, if we are to live and pay our honest debts. Samuel Johnson, who had little money himself, was a wise enough philosopher to say that few men are so harmlessly employed as when they are making money. But love and sunlight and the joy of June come free.

You cannot buy health with money, and your health is more valuable than money. You cannot buy back lost opportunities of friendship and the hearts of those you love. Care for money? Yes, certainly; but in proportion to its real worth.

CORRINE SHOWS SHE ISN'T SO BAD AS A "REAL MIND READER"

"I can tell you what number you're thinking of without any trouble at all," announced pretty Corrine Simmons to her brother Sam one evening after eating.

"All right," said Sam promptly, "what number am I thinking of?" Sam was always ready to have some fun with his sister.

"Oh, that isn't what I mean," laughed Corrine. "You see, you've got to do certain things first."

"Oh, I've got to do something? Well, what is it—jump in the river?"

"Think of a number." Corrine was getting down to business.

"Odd or even?"

"Doesn't make any difference—either will do. I'm a real mind reader, I'll let you know."

"I've got one—what now?"

"Double it and add six."

"No sooner said than done—what next, my dear?"

"Divide what you have by two and multiply the dividend by four."

Sam worked a minute or so on this, but was soon ready for the next step.

"And now what have you?" asked Corinne.

"Who wants to know? Am I supposed to tell you?"

"Why certainly," answered Corrine; "that's part of this game."

"Oh, well, all right then—I've got fifty-six."

Corrine knitted her brows for a few seconds and then, with a little pride she announced, "Your number was eleven."

Sam looked mystified at this and his only comment was "Huh, how'd you do it?"

Corrine then explained that she had taken fifty-six, divided it by two, subtracted six and divided what remained by two which left eleven—the original number.

Her system will work with any figure. See if it won't.

STUDENTS PREPARED FOR LIFE WORK IN STATE NORMAL HERE

Value of Courses of Training in Local School Pointed Out by President Cotton

(By F. A. Cotton, President La Crosse Normal)

"What is your life work to be?" This question is addressed to the members of the senior classes in high schools in Western Wisconsin and it is the most important question that the high school graduate has to answer. A man does not fulfill his duty to society unless he realizes his greatest capacity for work—unless he develops the best talent given him and finds the place in the world for which he is best fitted by nature and training.

Find Themselves Late

A great many men do not find themselves till late in life—after their best years have been spent in work distasteful to them. Many men never find themselves and the work which harmonizes with their greatest interest, and as a result belong to the great army of vocational misfits in the country. That there are misfits surely admits of no denial. Doubtless there are many mediocre professional men who spoiled so many skillful craftsmen in the making; and doubtless there are many mediocre workmen or skilled craftsmen for that matter, who with the opportunity and training might be eminent in the so-called learned professions. Every community has its quota of mediocre lawyers, doctors, preachers and teachers, with neither aptitude nor liking for the calling into which they have drifted as a result of their training. Every community has also men and women in the ranks of skilled and unskilled labor who, with the opportunity of these professional misfits, might have been successful in these callings. But sadder and more pathetic than either of these classes is the still larger army of unskilled untrained men and women with no life work. This is the vast army that for one reason or another at different stages in the work dropped out of school. They may have been compelled to earn a living; they may have been unable to do the work in school as it was presented; they may have, out of mere caprice, refused to go to school; it all amounts to the same thing in the end—a vast army of helpless, untrained, idle men and women for the public to support.

Have Definite Aim

All high school graduates are very anxious to succeed in life. But except in unusual cases, it is not possible for a boy to know during his high school life, what he wishes to do later—what his life work is to be. He has not had even a taste of the experience in the working world which would help him to decide what he does and does not like to do. A boy after graduating from the high school, who earns his living in the working world for a few years before finally finishing his education has a perspective and judgment which he can gain in no other way. He knows what he wants. He is far less likely to become one of the "misfits" in life.

How can the high school graduate gain that valuable experience with compensation enough to help him complete his education? One way is to prepare to teach school for a few years. The preparation in a state normal school for teaching, takes one to junior standing in any of the colleges and universities, and enables him to complete the four-year course in two years, after leaving the normal school.

Courses Prepare Them

The State Normal school at La Crosse offers courses which prepare young men to teach in high schools and coach athletics, debate and oratory, and to become principals of state graded schools or small high schools throughout the state. After completing one of these courses, the student can, while teaching for a few years, decide definitely what his life work is to be and later re-enter college and finish the work in two years. While in college, he will take junior and senior studies, which harmonize with his choice of a life work. There never was a time when there was a greater demand for well-trained teachers in the high schools, and at good salaries. Young men graduating from high schools this June, who have not made up their mind what their life work is to be, are urged to think it over—prepare to teach in the high schools and coach athletics, debate or oratory a few years while deciding the question: "What is My Life Work to Be?"

MAKING ICE IN THE DESERT

With the thermometer registering at noon one hundred and thirty degrees Fahrenheit a party of professional men made ice near an oasis in the Sahara desert and saved the life of a comrade who suffered from malignant fever. At seven o'clock in the evening the men shovelled down through the hot sand to a cooler stratum and formed a pit about eighteen inches deep. On the level bottom of the depression they placed a blanket that measured about five by eight feet. Then, drawing on the supply of camel fodder, they covered the blanket with chopped straw. From the oasis they drew water and covered the blanket to a depth of half an inch. As the night advanced the temperature fell, and at midnight frost crystals formed on the floating straw. At three o'clock the straw was embedded in a sheet of ice.

"FORBIDDEN FRUIT"

Speaking of "Forbidden Fruit," which opens today at the Rivoli, Cecil B. De Mille got the idea for his newest production from a scene in his "Why Change Your Wife?" While directing "Why Change Your Wife" he filmed a scene in which Bebe Daniels pours a drink for Thomas Meighan from a bottle bearing the title "Forbidden Fruit." De Mille made the bottle a bit of symbolism in the earlier photo-play and remarked at the time that the label would make a striking film for a future production. In the new production, the "Forbidden Fruit" has an entirely different significance from that in the early play. Where in "Why Change Your Wife?" the "forbidden fruit" referred to an illicit attachment in the forthcoming production it refers to a humble woman's desire for love and finery—both denied her.

"OFFSHORE PIRATE" NEW DANA VEHICLE

—"The Offshore Pirate," a Metro special production, starring adorable Viola Dana, comes as the feature attraction at the Casino today and Tuesday.

Opinion in other cities where this picture has been seen, pronounces it a wonderfully acted, convincing bit of work. This is due both to the skill put into its production, and to the fact that it is an adaptation from a Saturday Evening Post story by the well-known fiction writer, F. Scott Fitzgerald.

"The Offshore Pirate" is the story of a group of people who adopt desperate measures to save Ardita Farnam, an heiress, from the wiles of a scheming Russian who is after her money. Piratical tactics in Ardita's spruce yacht bring about a series of thrilling escapades, ending in a reversal of the intriguer's hopes, and the ushering in of new ones. Miss Dana is supported by an able cast, including Jack Mulhall Edward Jobson and Edward Cecil.

EILEEN PERCY IN ROLE OF A HUSBAND HUNTER; VODVIL ACT AT STRAND

What is declared by critics to be a most amusing screen entertainment is "The Husband Hunter," starring beautiful Eileen Percy, at the Strand today.

Adapted from F. Scott Fitzgerald's popular story, "Myra Meets His Family," "The Husband Hunter" tells the story of a vivacious young society belle Myra Hastings, who sets out to capture the heart and hand of a man who at the time is a total stranger. The man, Kent Whitney, hears that she is a chronic husband hunter and a plot is laid to defeat her plan. How Myra visits Whitney's country home, meets his "parents" and then turns the tables on the plotters is told in exceedingly funny situations leading up to a surprising climax. In the cast of clever players Emory Johnson is the hunted man. As an added attraction, Manager Cooper will present Hirschoff's dance fantasy. This act was the headline number at the Sunday vodvil show at the Riviera and won much applause.

CLOTHES THE THEME OF NEW FILM AT MAJESTIC

The philosophy of clothes translated into terms of human love and happiness is the theme of "What Every Woman Wants," which opens today at the Majestic with Grace Darmond in the leading role. Miss Darmond has the part of a poor girl who, in desperate need, marries her middle-aged employer when the name of her lover appears on the casualty list. She gets a magnificent home and lovely attire, but not happiness, by her marriage, and bitterly regrets it when eventually her soldier-sweetheart returns from France, unhurt.

Then the husband is murdered mysteriously, and his wife and her former sweetheart each try to take the blame in order to shield the other. But a mysterious character in the play is revealed as the murderer, and all ends happily.

The play is presented by an all star cast, and is very ably produced and photographed.

MUSICAL STOCK AND "MADAME X" OPENS AT RIVIERA TODAY

Pauline Frederick in Greatest Picture of Her Screen Career; Jewell-Golden Show Opens

Pauline Frederick in the great emotional play, "Madame X," and the Jewell-Golden company in musical comedy stock productions—that is the program at the Riviera for today. "Madame X" will be shown again Tuesday at the North Side's beautiful new playhouse and the musical comedy company will be here for an extended engagement.

With a company of 20 persons, including a beauty chorus that can sing and dance in addition to looking pretty, the Jewell-Golden company, starring Miss Lillian Bessent, the queen of syncopation, new and distinct wardrobe and scenery new songs, dances and snappy comedy, is prepared to give the utmost in musical comedy entertainment. Three entire changes of program will be given this week.

Pauline Frederick, say the critics, reaches the zenith of her art in the screen masterpiece, "Madame X" a Goldwyn picture. Miss Frederick plays the role of Jacqueline Florit, the stage role played by Dorothy Donnelly and which became one of the famous characters of the histrionic stage.

Turned out into the streets through the unjust suspicions of her husband denied the dearest privilege of a mother's heart, the right to see her son—Jacqueline Floriot maintained, the sacred traditions of motherhood even though the mire of a sordid life retarded her weary footsteps. Her husband, grown in political influence, became the judge of a Paris criminal court and strangely enough Jacqueline's murder of a blackmailer who would have ruined his career brought her before his bar of justice for punishment. Another cruel twist of fate and Raymond Floriot, her son, was placed before the bar in her defense. And here the tragic triangle fought its piteous battle. The mother recognized her husband in the stern justice before her but her eyes did not perceive her son. When the truth came, when her woman's honor was vindicated, death gave her peace. "Madame X" is tragedy, but it is tragedy of the sort that distills and purifies one's thoughts and ideals.

MURDER OF CHILD CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN OF STRUM

Myrtle Larson, Aged Twenty, to be Tried Before Judge Higbee Next Month

Myrtle Larson, 20 years old, of Strum, Wis., will go on trial to face a charge of murder in connection with the death of a new born child, of which she is alleged to be the mother, before Judge Higbee in Circuit court at Whitehall on June 20. The girl waived examination at a preliminary hearing in Whitehall and was released on $5,000 bond after being bound over to the Circuit court.

The charge against Miss Larson followed the report of a coroner's jury called to investigate circumstances surrounding the finding of the body of a new born babe in an outhouse at the rear of a millinery establishment at Strum on April 2. The jury found that the infant met death by suffocation, caused by means of paper pushed or lodged in its mouth and throat, and charged that the act had been committed by Miss Larson, who was alleged to be the mother of the child.

The jury's finding said: "Myrtle Larson gave birth to an infant child at the outhouse back of Mathilde Peterson's millinery shop in Strum Trempealeau county Wisconsin, being in the town of Unity, on April 2, 1921; that said infant child was born alive and came to its death by suffocation by means of paper pushed or lodged in its mouth and throat said paper having been unlawfully placed in the child's mouth and throat by the hand of its mother, Myrtle Larson and that said child had no name."

The girl was arrested following the finding of the coroner's jury, and the hearing was held at Whitehall. The case which has aroused much interest in Trempealeau and Jackson counties, will be prosecuted by District Attorney O. J. Eggum of Whitehall. Attorneys Linderman and Ramsdell of Eau Claire will represent Miss Larson.

CONTINUANCE OF U. S. EXCESS PROFITS TAX ASKED BY CHICAGOAN

Appears Before Senate Finance Committee to Discuss Tax Revision

URGES ABANDONMENT OF SURTAX ON DIVIDENDS

Also Asks Reduction on Surtax Rates on Personal Incomes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Tax revision discussions were given a new twist before the senate finance committee Monday by H. Archibald Harris of Chicago, who took a positive stand for continuation of the excess profits tax and urged exemption of corporation dividends from surtaxes. He was the first witness before any congressional committee at this session to propose retention of the excess profits tax provisions of the present revenue law.

He told the committee it should direct efforts toward reduction of tax free securities. He believed that if means were found to throttle the flotation of tax exempt obligations by federal, state and local governments, a long step would be taken toward drawing capital back into productive enterprises.

In addition to elimination of surtaxes on the dividends of corporations Mr. Harris suggested a reduction of the higher surtax rates on personal incomes and a differentiation in tax rates an "active and passive" investments.

He argued that there should be no tax on dividends but that corporate earnings should be made to bear sufficiently high levies to provide the federal needs from that source.

"Release the tax on individuals even though you do strike the corporations more heavily," the witness urged. "Then tax the interest on the bonds and preferred stocks and other issues of a passive income nature. By relieving the tax on dividends, we are going to have a great clamor for stocks of all kinds and the present bonds and preferred stocks will be converted into common stocks, all of which will be active capital."

Fears of the treasury that it would not be able to meet its requirements if some substitute for the profits tax were not found, were declared by the witness to be unfounded. He asserted that the auditing of tax transactions for the last three years would bring much more money into the federal chest than the most enthusiastic officials had hoped.

By sifting the 1917 returns the treasury is shaking out around $85,000,000 a month in extra taxes, Mr. Harris said, and predicted that when examination of the 1918 returns gets under way, the income from back taxes will jump to between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 a month.

"This will mean," he added, "that between $1,800,000,000 and $2,520,000,000 in additional taxes will be assessed in the next three years."

Mr. Harris believed it impossible for the treasury to complete the auding of the 1918 returns under three years. His personal estimate of the added revenue from back taxes was higher than the treasury's figures, the witness said, for he held that penalties to be assessed would average 30 percent. In the next three years, he said, the government should receive between $2,340,000,000 and $3,276,000,000 from 1918 which treasury officials have not counted on as yet in any of their computations.

Widespread or radical changes in the revenue laws were opposed by Mr. Harris, who told the committee that the country had already suffered from too many switches in the federal taxation policy.

RAINBOW ON THE ICE

Robert S. Walker writes in the Guide to Nature as follows:

"I had a rather unusual experience last week while walking over the McCallie avenue viaduct leading into Chattanooga. A few acres of ground beneath were covered with a thin coat of ice. The sun was shining brightly and a beautiful rainbow appeared in the ice, just as large and as distinct as the ones we so often see poised in the midsummer spray. One end was directly beneath our feet and it followed us until we walked beyond the ice. Thus far I have never heard of any one seeing a rainbow on the ice."

It was started experimentally from Washington some time ago and it was so heartily received that it has been extended to several other centers. AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

Where and how do you learn what the new styles will be? How do you find out about the new household conveniences which are being prepared for your comfort?

How do you come to know about the new recipes—the delicious salads and desserts which grace your table?

Have you ever stopped to think about it?

Some of this information comes from friends of course. Some you receive from tradesmen, your department store clerk or your grocer.

But when you really analyze the question, what every day, every week message is it which brings you the news of interesting and useful merchandise?

It is Advertising, isn't it? — the advertising you see in your daily newspaper, in your magazine, on the street cars, on the billboards, in your daily mail.

That vacuum cleaner back in the pantry; that kitchen cabinet; that bookcase in the library; that washing machine in the basement; that tube of tooth paste in the bathroom; that automobile out in front of the house —didn't you learn about them all through advertising?

Didn't you study a long time before you bought each one of these articles? Perhaps, it was unconscious—but didn't you deliberate before you bought that kitchen cabinet, or that automobile, or that vacuum cleaner?

And wasn't it advertising which convinced you that these purchases were wise ones—that the kitchen cabinet would save you much useless work; that the automobile you finally selected was the best for your particular needs; and that the vacuum cleaner would clean your house more quickly and more easily than you could do it in any other way?

And how would you know about the prices of to-day's markets unless advertising kept you informed?

Suppose the folks who make the soup you buy in cans should stop advertising tomorrow. And the factory which makes knives and forks and spoons for your table. And the soap maker, the big silk manufacturer, the perfumer, the shoehouse. By next Winter you would never know whether you were paying a fair price for their goods or not.

You would buy your suits, your underwear, your rugs—even your eggs with your eyes closed. You could never be sure whether you were paying more or less than your cousin in Iowa was paying for the same merchandise.

Follow the advertisements. Let them serve you. Learn them. Profit by them.

Those who serve you—the manufacturers, the storekeepers, the professional organizations—are spending millions of dollars to-day, to-morrow, this year, to keep you informed—to make your buying easier and more profitable.

Read their messages. You cannot afford not to.

FRED HANKERSON "INTERPRETER" IN SCHOOLS PAGEANT

Will Describe to Audience Meaning of Shifting Scenes and Changing Moods

Fredrick P. Hankerson will appear as the "Interpreter" in the pageant to be staged by the La Crosse schools on Friday. What the caption is to the moving picture the interpreter is to a pageant of this type, a link beween dramatic episodes, an explanation of shifting scenes and changing moods. Mr. Hankerson has been given this important role both because his voice is well fitted for it and because he has had some little experience with this sort of work having recently won first place for the La Crosse high school in the district oratorical contest. An elevated platform with a specially constructed sounding board behind it will make it possible for his voice to be heard by the entire audience.

Great care has been exercised in the selection of the types to represent "The Spirit of America," "The Goddess of Liberty" and "The New America," symbolic figures which are to be posed by Eloise Clark, Mildred Sexauer and Marian Jehlen respectively. Tom Reay will take the part of "Father Time." In the Indian scene Ray Dunham will take the part of the "Prophet," the "Chiefs" will be Leonard Kilian, Hazael Curry, George White, Carrol Stokke, the "Scout," George Haddad. The parts of the Indian Women have been given to Virginia Baker, Beulah Atkinson, Margaret Harrison and Sara Nathanson. Other sympolic figures will be posed by Wm. Herbert as "Oppression" Joseph Boschert as a "Profiteer," Walter Affeldt and Ida Obmascher as "Labor" Margaret Werel, Lief Neprud, Russel Schilkorowsky and Mamae Bentley representing "Health" "Industry," "Democracy," and "Patriotism" respectively. The soldiers and sailors representing the protective powers of the United States in the final tableau will be taken by Harold Schroeder, John Hurley, Raymond Moran, John Zoerb, Leslie Hilton, Roy Smith.

The cars were driven by Onalaska youths, one of whom is said to be named Berg. The young men usually rode back and forth between the city and Onalaska in the same Fords. Sunday each had a car and while one was coming to town he met the other on the way home. The Fords just naturally came to a clinch. The car driven by Berg had a wheel torn off. Neither driver was hurt.

A Ford truck tried to bump a one-man car off the tracks on Main street just west of the bend between Fifth and Sixth streets. The street car sustained most of the damage, namely the loss of some paint.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS TAKE DRAMATIC SHOT AT MODERN FASHIONS

Style Show of Good and Bad Taste Delights Hundreds of Mothers and Daughters

Several hundred mothers and daughters expressed their enthusiastic approval of the Style Show and of the little play, "The High School Clothes Line," staged by high school girls last week, under the direction of Miss Olive Cook, Mrs. Holley and Miss Macnair. A stage artistically arranged and lighted gave a charming background to the pretty scene. Part one was the little play with a moral, the moral being the importance of a budget system, of every girl having a clothes allowance and the responsibility of spending it wisely. It also demonstrated effectively appropriate and inappropriate clothes for every occasion. The unsuitable outfits brought some hearty laughs, especially amusing was the girl attired in frilling kimono and slippers, her hair streaming who had arrayed herself thus to do the housework. Many other absurdities such as high heels for school wear, protruding hair dress and exaggerated evening costume were shown. The many becoming and suitable costumes were greeted with murmurs of approval.

In the Fashion Show coats and suits, sport suits and wool dresses, most of them loaned by Doerflinger's and hats from the Larsen Hat Shop were displayed. Each was admirably suited to the girl who wore it. All the wash dresses, some exquisite little models, were worn by the girls who had designed and made them. These were excellent evidence of the desirability to learning what is becoming to the individual type and of being able to accomplish the desired effect on a limited expenditure. The show concluded with a chorus of girls clad gaily in dresses of organdy and gingham of their own making, singing a song composed for the occasion:

"For pretty is as pretty does,
We know it's very true, because
There are some girls so sweet and gracious,
And some with actions quite audacious.
This creed we follow and we plan
To dress as simply as we can,
To wear our nicest smile
And do the things worth while.
Pretty is as pretty does."

Sparrows Are Leaving the Towns

Observers of bird life are agreed that the sparrows are deserting the towns to a great extent and their places are being taken by the more desirable song birds.

Hues of humming birds differ in different parts of the world, but those in Arizona are perhaps the most brilliant.

TOURISTS WILL NOT FIND GERMANY SO ALLURING THIS YEAR

Travel Will be Less Attractive than in Pre-war Times, is Report from Berlin

HOTELS ARE JAMMED NOW AND PRICES ARE SOARING

South Germany Offers Greatest Field for Pleasure-Seekers

BERLIN.—American tourists who come to Germany this summer will find conditions of travel far less attractive than in pre-war times. In Hamburg and Berlin hotel facilities are constantly overtaxed by business men and even persons who have telegraphed days in advance for accommodations are turned away by the first-class hotels. If foreigners are assigned to rooms they pay far more than is charged to Germans.

Conditions along the Rhine are not especially inviting for tourists. The larger places are overtaxed by the occupying armies, and it is almost impossible for outsiders to get first-class hotel accommodations Cologne, Coblenz and Mainz are filled to overflowing by British, American and French officers, respectively. Most of the hotels are under control of the military and cannot be used by civilians unless they have authorization from commanding officers.

It is also difficult for tourists to travel between the various sections of the occupied area. Police registration is very strict and permits must be obtained to enter and leave various areas.

In South Germany conditions are more inviting to pleasure-seekers. Dresden and Munich are not so filled with business men and the better hotels are usually able to provide tourists with rooms at rates much less than in Berlin and Hamburg.

The passport problem is annoying even within Germany's own boundaries. For example, it is necessary for a tourist going from Berlin to Bavaria to have the vise of the Bavarian legation in Berlin. This precaution has been taken by Bavaria to prevent red agitators from invading their territory from Berlin.

Trains are normal in Germany. Bread cards are necessary to get bread in dining cars and hotels and most of the bread served is heavy and black.

In the smaller cities and villages tourists will find living conditions much the same as they were before the war. Americans motoring through Germany or traveling on trains are courteously treated. There is no longer any disposition to resent the use of the English language.

So far this year there have been few Americans in Germany excepting business men and persons who came to visit relatives. Most of these found the passport regulations very irksome. Tourists arriving at Dutch, Belgian, French or English ports suffer delays in getting vises for Germany, and travel across the boundaries into Germany involves an endless making of declarations.

It is almost impossible under present conditions for tourists to travel on a fixed schedule in central Europe, especially if their trip necessitates the crossing of boundaries. Passport offices are frequently crowded. Much time is lost in getting vises, and trains have interminable waits at customs stations.

Through trains are now operating between Paris and Warsaw, which make the rail trip to Poland and the Baltic states far easier than it has been since the armistice. Trains will soon be run from Berlin to Riga, Latvia. Barring passport annoyances, travel is almost normal between Berlin and Prague and Berlin and Vienna.

There are no fast boat trains now between Berlin and Hamburg and Berlin and Bremen, such as existed between the war.

The great German steamship lines co-operating with American lines now operate touring companies of their own which are prepared to conduct parties throughout Germany at a fixed price, including hotel accommodations, railway fares, guides and carriages. The rates are higher than before the war, even taking the favorable American exchange into consideration.

Since the armistice there have been few American tourist parties in Germany on regularly conducted tours. The great tourist agencies have not been able to guarantee fixed rates because of the wild fluctuation in exchange and the general disruption of the organizations through which arrangements were perfected in pre-war days.

An effort is being made by steamship lines, hotel proprietors and railway officials to get American tourist business back on a fixed basis, but the failure of the United States to make peace with Germany has been a great hindrance to such negotiations.

HAIR FROM HISTORIC HEADS

For a lock of hair cut from the head of Nepoleon when on his deathbed at St. Helena the sum of $125 was paid in Paris a few years ago. A lock cut from his head after death was sold in London for $35, although as little as $15 has been paid for another lock, while for a lock of hair cut from his head at the time he was aboard the Bellerophon the sum of $150 was paid. Hair from Nelson's head has also fetched as much as $18 to $500 for a lock, while for some belonging to the Duke of Wellington, sold by auction, nobody was prepared to offer more than $5. On the other hand, $20 was paid for a few of Sir Walter Scott's locks, and a lock of Byron's hair brought more than $50.

How Do Your Furs Spend The Summer?

The care taken of your furs during the summer is of the utmost importance. It is not sufficient that you succeed in bringing them through free from moths—but the temperature affects the luster and wearing quality. Furs kept in a warm place are likely to become "singy" and the oil in the pelt dries out. Ordinary dry storage will not suffice.

Your furs will be stored in a cold storage ice plant and kept throughout the summer at below freezing temperature.

Although the expense of operation as well as that of construction is tremendous, our storage charge is as low as those who only place furs in common storage vaults—namely 3% on the valuation. This covers storage as well as the insurance against fire, theft and moths.

Send your furs by express. Write us your valuation.

Remodeling, relining and repairing of furs should be done during the summer months. We will be pleased to submit an estimate.

Come in to see the storage plant in operation. At any rate call on us when in town.

In addition to furs we carry the most select line of dresses, suits, coats and wraps.

RAW COAL BURNING IS EXTRAVAGANCE

The method of burning raw coal as now generally followed is rank extravagance and there is a movement among the engineers of the country which is endeavoring to bring about a reform in this direction. By the process of distillation coal can be made use of with much more efficiency than at present, many valuable commodities being recovered which not only now go to waste, but in some instances comprise a nuisance. The smoke of the cities would be eliminated in this way. Taking, for instance, the million tons of coal consumed in this country in the course of a year, the value of the products thus derived would amount to four billions whereas the value of the coal itself is only half that figure.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so tenderizes the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

"CINDERELLA" IN THE FILMS--ELABORATE SET TELLS STORY

Episode Photographed in Huge Plate-Glass Interior in "Forbidden Fruit"

Everyone knows the story of Cinderella and the Fairy Godmother. And now all the world may see the story presented with the lavish beauty for which Cecil B. DeMille is famous as producer, when "Forbidden Fruit" comes to the Rivoli theater for six days starting today.

The incorporation of the story of Cinderella in a vision episode in the otherwise modern story serves a twofold purpose: The vision serves to explain much of the subsequent action, and it gives Mr. De Mille's colorful imagination and artistry full play with incomparably beautiful results.

This episode was filmed in a stage setting constructed entirely of plate glass. A ball room floored and walled with heavy glass, with a wide glass staircase beneath which waterfalls and lights alternately play, forms the central setting. Stately glass pillars supporting baskets of blown glass fruit serve as fountains and wide pools of water peopled by black swans alternate with the crystal floor. A section of this same crystal floor was so constructed as to permit the appearance of a massive clock with two bronze figures which strike the hour of twelve and the end of Cinderella's dream. Agnes Ayres portrays Cinderella, with Kathlyn Williams as the Fairy Godmother.

SENATE REVIVES HUBER BILL FOR "JOB INSURANCE"

Measure Introduced at Opening of Session Comes up Again this Week

MADISON, Wis.—The Huber unemployment insurance bill, which has been lying dormant in the committee since the first of the session, will be revived this week when it comes up for consideration by the judiciary committee on Thursday. Substitute amendment to the original bill, also brought in by Senator Huber, will be the measure acted on.

While not expecting its passage by the present legislature the author of the bill says that a determined effort will be made to bring the necessity for some means of dealing with unemployment. The present proposal, drawn by Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, will be urged in order that the subject of unemployment insurance might be suggested to the legislature, according to Senator Huber.

The principles involved in the bill are the same as those which govern workmen's compensation, Professor Commons points out. This is but another step toward bringing about the condition whereby the entire public will bear the cost of the hazards of industry, as explained by its proponents.

Administration of the unemployment insurance law would be carried out by the industrial commission which would be guided by an advisory board as created under the proposed law. Compulsory mutual insurance would be used by the employers.

With about a month left before the final examinations and graduation, La Crosse students are bucking down to the last grind before the summer recess.

Rudolph Schlabach put his canoe in Lake Mendota last week.

Carl Hirshheimer manager of the varsity track team, entertained Morris G. Meyer of Chicago over the week-end. Meyer who won the prep school sprint championship of Illinois is considering enrolling at Wisconsin in the fall and was up for the Illinois baseball game and the Minnesota dual track meet.

Ten women students are specializing in the College of Agriculture at the University this year.

Earl Hirshheimer was one of the people accosted by the Inquiring Reporter of the Wisconsin State Journal on Saturday. Replying to the question as to whether the United States should resume its trade relations with Russia, the La Crosse man said, "Before such a step is taken we should consider carefully the risk, as the present Russian government is not very stable. As long as Great Britain is trading with Russia, however, I don't see why we shouldn't take advantage of the opportunity too."

Faculty members of the University will give commencement addresses in many of the smaller towns surrounding La Crosse this June. Prof. A. P. Hauke will talk at Wilton, Prof. Thomas Lloyd Jones of the school of education, will speak at Westby; Tomah and Hixton will hear H. L. Miller, principal of the Wisconsin high school, D. S. Robinson of the philosophy department is scheduled for the principal address at La Farge, and A. T. Weaver of the department of speech will address the graduates of Galesville high school.

The senior class of the university, numbering a score of La Crosse students, has voted to join the alumni association as a body. The membership will be included in the assessment for the senior memorial.

A social worker who will devote her full time to organizing and directing Parent-Teacher associations throughout the state wherever there is a call for that work, has recently been engaged by the University Extension Division. This is the first project of its kind undertaken by an American University.

The following seniors in the various colleges at the University will graduate and receive their degress this June: Myrtle O. Bangsberg, Harold E. Crider, John S. Dickens, Ruth Eckhausen, Mary Farnum, Raymond O. Grams, Earl S. Hirshheimer, Hobart V. Hodge, Burton E. James, George G. Kreutz, Joe J. Liscovec, Albert E. Meinert, Arthur T. Nelson, Lora Palmer, Rudolph Schlabach, Gretchen Schweizer, Marguerite Skaar, Helen C. Uhl, William E. Walker and Leona Yerly.

A woodshed has been fitted up as a chemical laboratory by one young man in Texas who is studying science by mail through the University of Wisconsin extension division.

Soon a campaign will be put on which will extend to all sections of the state and country to boost the membership in the University of Wisconsin alumni association to 10,000.

The two La Crosse members of the university track team both placed in their respective events in the dual track meet with the University of Minnesota on Saturday afternoon at Camp Rundall. Joe Liscovec placed first in the discus and Walter Reget got second in the broad jump. Wisconsin won the meet with no difficulty by the score of 104 to 31. The previous week the Badgers defeated the Chicago track squad by the score of 105 to 30.

Sundt and Knollin were the individual stars of Saturday's meet. Sundt placed first in three events, the broad jump, javelin throw and shot put, breaking the Wisconsin record in the javelin. He broke his last year's record of 158 feet with a throw of 160 feet on Saturday. Knollin placed first over Anderson of Minnesota in the century and 220 low hurdles, getting second in the high barriers.

A large number of La Crosse people witnessed one of the most exciting baseball games in years on Saturday when Wisconsin lost to Illinois, conference champions, 9 to 8 in a thirteen inning contest. The game was close all the way. Elliott got a three bagger. Barry pinch hitter for Wisconsin, knocked out a homer in the eight with two men on, tying the count. In the thirteenth Rollie Williams got his second three bagger but died on third when the pinch hitter struck out.

HIGH PRICE FOR A FIDDLE

A new record has been set up in auction-room fiddle prices by the recent sale of the "Muir-Mackenzie" Stradivarius violin for $8,500. The price of the six hundred "Strads" which are known to be in existence, usually ranges from $2,500 to about $4,000.

In 1909, however, a particularly fine instrument, known in musical trade circles as the "Avory Strad," fetched the then record price at a public auction of $4,875. And two years later another famous instrument, the "Booth Strad," sent the record up to $7,500.

True, $12,500 was paid by Lady Wernher for one of these violins at a Red Cross sale during the war. But this was for charity, and the sum paid did not represent the real value of the instrument.

Considerably higher prices have any of these have, however, been paid for fiddles sold privately. Kubelik, for instance, is credited with having given $50,000 in 1910 for the "Haddock Strad," which found its way to England from Brussels in the year of Waterloo, and had only been played in public twice in the intervening ninety-five years.

It is claimed that there are 11,000 miles of paved streets and sidewalks in New York city.

"IRISH CINDERELLA" GIVES MISS SITZER SECOND "PEG" PART

Irish Play Opens on Sunday With Good Houses at Both Performances

Eloda Sitzer and the Beach-Jones stock players scored heavily Sunday in the opening performances of "My Irish Cinderella," which is to be their bill until Wednesday. The part of the appealing Irish colleen, the heroine, is one admirably suited to Miss Sitzer's ability, and she was roundly applauded for her work by the opening night houses.

"My Irish Cinderella" might be called a companion piece to "Peg O' My Heart," and those who saw Miss Sitzer as Peg in that bill last winter will realize how much she enjoys such a character. A feature of the play is the "menagerie" that plays a heavy part, including the pup Michael, Nanny the goat and Robert Emmett, a hen, strange as it may seem. It appears that Robert Emmett was named under a misapprehension, and when he shattered illusions by laying an egg it was too late to change his name to conform with his characteristics.

Stock fans are still talking about the pleasant party which the players gave for the audience Saturday afternoon after the matinee performance of "The Brat" More than half of the 400-odd people in the house remained to get acquainted with Miss Sitzer and her support, and "a pleasant time was had by all."

The New Laws
on teeth cleaning—five of them

Dental science has adopted new laws on teeth cleaning. They mean whiter, cleaner, safer teeth to those who follow them.

Millions employ these new methods, largely by dental advice. Now this ten-day test is offered to show every home the results.

1—Fight the film

The first law is to fight film—that viscous coat you feel. It dims the teeth and causes most tooth troubles.

Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Old ways of brushing do not end it. So few have escaped some form of film attack.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Two methods now

Two ways are now known to fight film. Able authorities have proved their efficiency. Leading dentists everywhere now advise their daily use.

Both are embodied in Pepsodent — a scientific tooth paste. They keep the teeth uniquely clean and also highly polished.

Three other laws

Modern starchy diet also calls for other helps to Nature. So every use of Pepsodent brings these three desired results.

1—A multiplied salivary flow.
2—Multiplied starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. 3—Multiplied alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids which cause tooth decay.

Thus Pepsodent fights two deposits—film and starch—which may do great harm to teeth. Also the destroying acids, and in Nature's way.

Brings a new era

These mean vast improvements on old methods. In fact, old methods brought the opposite effects. Pepsodent has introduced a new era in teeth cleaning, and millions now enjoy it.

Now we urge that you send for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Feel the other good effects.

Then decide by what you see and feel. Do this for your own sake. Cut out the coupon now.

SUBSTITUTE HURLER PUTS ARM OUT WITH FIRST BALL

La Crosse Puts Over Three Runs in the Ninth Inning

LA CROSSE'S new ball team took a second trimming Sunday at Lansing, losing a tilt to the down-river boys by a score of 9 to 5.

At that, it was not as much of a walkaway as the score indicates, for La Crosse twice threatened to break it up and was fighting until the last man was out in the ninth, as is plainly shown by the fact that they put three runs across the pan in the last frame. Chances of saving the game, however, vanished in the sixth, when Walters was taken ill on the mound and Erickson had to take his place. But Erickson was jinxed, and threw his arm out with his first pitch. Kabat had to move in from second to finish up the game. The score would have been five to six except for the three runs the Lansingites garnered off the fill-in hurler in the seventh.

The La Crosse bunch was working well behind the bad luck on the slab, however, and on more than one occasion quick and accurate fielding nipped threatening rallies. The score by innings was:

La Crosse . . . . . 000 002 003—5
Lansing . . . . . 000 121 32x—9

Locals Start in Sixth

La Crosse's scoring started in the sixth when Shimshak, first man up, singled, and the performance was repeated by F. Johnson. Weigent, next up, was struck by a pitched ball, filling the bases. The first run came over when Walters got a hit, scoring Shimshak. A minute later F. Johnson scored when Bob Johnson hit safely. The bases were full again and it looked good for La Crosse to take the lead with one down, but Jonsrud sent up a long fly which fell into the fielder's hands and Fuchs and Kabat fanned, ending the scoring for La Crosse until the ninth.

Seventh Good for Lansing

La Crosse's bad inning was the seventh, when Walters went bad and had to be taken out. E. Spinner, first Lansing man up, beat out a hit to first and a minute later stole second. Roeder flied out, but L. Spinner sent up a long safety that brought the runner home and left himself perched on second. Then the lusky Gaunitz smashed out a home run, making a total of three runs for the inning. E. Spinner got a single, but Dye and Miles flied out in succession and he died on second, ending the inning.

In the eighth Erickson went in in Walters' place, but was out of it after his first heave, the throw wrenching his shoulder.

Double Play Stops Lansing

Kabat finished the game for La Crosse on the slab, and only snappy fielding kept the tallies of the enemy down to a counle. Nanks, first man up, hit, stole second and went home on a hit by E. Spinner. Roeder and L. Spinner each got a hit and E. Spinner scored, leaving L. Spinner and Roeder on third and second respectively, with none out. It looked like another bunch of tallies for Lansing with Gaunitz up, but he shot one into short left and quick fielding made it a double play, Krause's throw beat Spinner to the plate and Johnson shot the ball to second in time to catch Gaunitz sliding in. E. Spinner ended it by flying out.

In the ninth La Crosse had its final rally, starting when Dye walked. Fuchs, first man up. Kabat fanned, but Krause worked Dye for a pass and Shimshak laced out a triple that scored both Fuchs and Krause. Johnson sacrificed and scored Shimshak; Weigent beat out a bunt and the next man singled, leaving two men on bases with two out. Bob Johnson, however, broke up the rally with a long drive into center that was caught, retiring the side.

Lineups:

La Crosse—Fuchs, cf; Kabat, 2b; Krause, lf; Shimshak, 1b; F. Johnson, c; Weigent, 3b; Walters, p; Erickson, p; Bob Johnson, rf; Jonsrud, ss.

MITCHELL ATTEMPTS "COME-BACK" IN HIS BOUT AT MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Richie Mitchell, Milwaukee lightweight boxer, will attempt a "come-back" Monday night when he meets Johnny Mendelssohn, another local boy but well known in several northwestern states, in a ten round no decision bout. It will be Mitchell's first bout since Rocky Kansas was awarded the newspaper decision over him two months ago. The boys will enter the ring at catch weights.

SPEEDERS GETTING BUSY

INDIANAPOLIS—The speedway where the international 500-mile dash for $100,000 will be held May 30 is bubbling with activity earlier this year than any time in the history of the great Hoosier classic.

A number of the drivers and their cars are on the scene and, what is more, they are already testing out their cars with a will that would lead one to believe that the contestants realize the competition will be keener than ever this year, and then, too, the unusually large purse has an attractive ring that is arousing the working interest of all racing hands concerned. It will be a rich haul for some of those laddies who are tuning up their mounts now.

CARPENTIER IS DUE IN NEW YORK FOR BOUT WITH DEMPSEY

Frenchman Brings Sparring Partners With Him from His Native Land

NEW YORK.—Georges Carpentier will arrive here today to prepare himself for that little engagement with Jack Dempsey at Jersey City on July 2. The French champion no doubt will be most politic in his department and have nothing more to report than that he is ready to settle the question of supremacy between himself and the American mauler.

It is a certainty that the Frenchman will not be rash enough to tell us that he will beat the champion. He will tell us no doubt that he is confident and trusts that the best man will win. Georges is too crafty to put himself in bad by making any silly statements which he might not be able to sustain later on.

Interpreter a Sure Aid

The Frenchman will face the battery of interrogations in his usual suave way, and when the tough ones are shot at him he will deliberate long enough to answer them most carefully through his interpreter. Georges can take a headlock on the English language, but when he finds himself in difficulty wherein a direct answer is necessary we will no doubt find him parrying until his aides straighten him out.

It also is a certainty that the boxer will announce that he is in the usual pink for the fray and that he will do his best to carry the title over to Europe.

Carpentier will repair in a few days to Manhasset, where, it is reported, he will do most of his training in secret.

Brings Sparring Mate

Georges will have one French boxer to assist him during the training period and his manager, M. Descamps, will not doubt engage several American heavies to help when the real hard work starts.

From all accounts the French champion is a faithful, hard worker, and when he faces the American titleholder he will be in the best shape of his life. He has heard all about Dempsey's wonderful hitting ability, and declared when he was here last that he does not fear the Yankee boxer in the least.

In his only fight in this country, against Battling Levinsky, Georges showed that he packed a fairly respectable wallop himself, and his supporters argue that if he can land right on Mr. Dempsey, the show is likely to shut down very early.

LEFT EARFUL

Dull is the day that Paddock fails
To pull off nifty deeds.
It seems he laid a padlock on
Most all the running speeds.

RIGHT EARFUL

Can give rent hogs the raz.
Few folks have "moved" around as much
As Capablanca has.

WINONA DEFEATED BY NELSONS, 8 TO 3, IN OPENING GAME

Ritter Strikes Out Eight in Six Innings; Ormand Puts Two Down in Three Frames

LOCALS POUND OUT THREE FIFTH BY HEAVY HITTING

Visitors Garner Two in Sixth Making Best Showing of Game

The Nelson Clothing company ball team pounded the Winona Peerless Chain for an 8 to 3 victory in the first game of the season at Copeland park. The park was jammed with fans and a regular mid-season game was served for the feast, in point of speed and action. In the first inning Groski of Winona, first batter up, leaned against one of Ritter's fast ones for a three bagger. The next three Winona men fanned the wind.

Ritter was in fine form and struck out eight men in six innings. Moss and Chapman, heaving for Winona, each struck out one Nelson man, Ormand who relieved Ritter struck out two in three innings.

The fifth inning was the best frame of the game. Groski singled to center, Adel struck out with two and three to his credit. Chapman rapped out a fly which Heyer misjudged and missed. Conkey popped a fly which fell in front of the pitcher's box. Owens fouled out for three down. Heyer, first up for the Nelsons, struck out. Freng made first and Smith got a two-bagger. Freng scored on Beranek's grounder. Smith and Beranek scored on Schaffer's single to right. Schaffer was caught between second and third. Tanke grounded down third base line for two bases. Johnson flyed out, thus ending a prosperous session for the Nelsons.

Next Sunday the Nelsons play Genoa at Genoa; May 29 Genoa will play the Nelsons at Copeland park and on Memorial day, May 30, Caledonia and the Nelsons will mix at Copeland.

ROD & REEL By DIXIE CARROLL

THE WIGGLE O' THE WORM

The ringed worm can be cleaned in two or three days, while the other three take at least a week to put them in clean, pink shape. Every other day the worms should be examined and the sick looking brothers taken out, as well as the moss changed. Slip them a little food at the same time; a slice of bread broken into small pieces, and a spoonful of milk or cream poured on the moss is plenty and will keep 'em while getting ready for the hook. Sounds like a joke to wash and feed your pet worms, but if you never offered a clean worm to the fish just give it a tryout, and, take it from me, old-timer, you are certainly due for a surprise at the results. While the conditioning game is going on keep the worm crock in a cool place.

When digging worms don't overlook the small ones. It is a mistaken idea that only the big ones get the big fish; often the largest worm will fall a victim of the smallest fish. A small, clean, pink worm with a lively kick is more enticing to the big fellows than the big night crawler that you hunt with a lantern.

When hooking the worm do not run the hook clear through the body, but simply hook it through the skin. About one-third way down the body run the hook through the skin, then skip about a third of the body and run the hook through again, leaving about a quarter of the entire length of the worm wriggling loose at the barb of the hook. This keeps them lively and kicking and that attracts the big fellows. While a dead worm may get the small-er fish, it doesn't appel much to the kind you are generally after. When hooking a new worm always take off the small pieces of his predecessor.

When you have tried out everything else and the fish seem to be off the feed, slip a nice worm on the hook, and if that doesn't make them hungry you can feel certain you have done your part in your effort to coax the big fins out of the water.

LA CROSSE BALL TEAM LIFTS A LIZZIE BACK TO THE RIGHT PATH

There's a farmer down near Victory who thinks a good deal of the La Crosse baseball team since Sunday afternoon.

The local gang, including rooters, was coming back from Lansing when it came across the farmer and a friend, sitting disconsolately in a flivver that had skated off the road, down an S-foot bank, and was leaning drunkenly against a tree. The occupants had given up hope of getting Lizzie back to the road, and were contemplating with no enthusiasm the prospect of a long hike for help.

But help arrived in the shape of some fifty La Crosse men with a fellow-feeling for misery after having taken a hard-luck licking at Lansing. They all piled out of the cars, laid hold of Lizzie, and with about two heaves and a ho had her right side up with care on the highway.

The farmer drove off with a smile like a 200-candle-power headlight.

"Listen," he said in parting. "I'm coming up to La Crosse next Sunday and I'm going to do something nice for this here ball team. I'm a rooter for you boys from now on."

ARIELS WIN FROM TAG-HARTS BY FORFEIT

MARKET UNSETTLED

Lack of Support Sends Oils, Motors and Other Stocks Down For One to Two Point Losses

NEW YORK—Offerings were perceptibly reduced after the early selling on the stock exchange Monday but the tone of the market remained nervous and unsettled. Least support was shown by oils, motors, independent steels and wood and leather shares. Mexican Petroleums, common and preferred, Pan-American and Pacific Oil lost one to two points. Studebaker, Stromberg, Bosch Magneto and Stewart Warner fell 1 to 3 points and Crucible, Baldwin Locomotive and Gulf States Steel 1 to 2½. Corn Products and Endicott-Johnson were among the heavy specialties. Rails were sluggish and conflicting. Chesapeake and Ohio and Western Pacific preferred fell back moderately, while Texas and Pacific and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western were firm to strong.

Dealings on the stock exchange in the first half hour of the session pointed to a continuance of the recent reactionary movement. Sumatra Tobacco opened at a further recovery of three points, but this was promptly cancelled. Mexican Petroleum's first quotation showed a large reactional gain but tis was immediately forfeited. Other rails as well as motors and equipments showed similar tendencies. Among the less distinctive issues, New York Air Brake and Sears-Roebuck at declines of 2 and 2¼ points respectively were the distinctive features. Early rates on London were not affected by latest exchanges between the British and French governments over the Silesian situation.

Oils, motors and specialties as featured by Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, International Paper, Central Leather and Chandler led a covering movement later. The close was steady.

WHEAT MARKET STIFFENS

Reports of Frost Damage Strengthens Market After Easier Opening

CHICAGO, Ill.—Frost reports from various sections strengthened the wheat market Monday after an easy start. There was a disposition also to take a less bearish view of pending legislation. In this connection it was pointed out that under any circumstances six months or more would be required for the proposed laws to become operative and that farmer control did not imply any decline in values. Opening quotations, which varied from unchanged figures to ½c lower, with May $1.43 and July $1.15 to ½ were followed by a slight further sag and then by material gains all around.

Subsequently, word of rains in Texas and Oklahoma together with better crop reports from parts of Kansas tended to ease the July delivery but May continued in persistent demand with country offerings light. The close was unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to three cents higher, May $1.46 to ¼ and July $1.15¼ to ½.

Corn sympathized with wheat. After opening unchanged to ⅜c lower, including July 62⅝ to ½c the market scored a moderate general advance.

Commission house selling on the upturns counted against the bulls later. The close was heavy, ⅜c to 1c net lower with July 61½ to ⅝c.

Oats were governed by the action of other cereals starting a shade to ⅜c lower, July 39¼ to ¾c and then hardening somewhat.

Weakness in hogs depressed provisions.

Death Ship of the Cornish Coast

The death ship is a superstition which persists along the Cornwall coast. With a black hull and a stubby bow and her sails all set she is supposed to approach the coast without regard to wind or tide and suddenly she puts about and at that instant some one dies. The people along the coast also believe implicity in the existence of the phantom lights which are said to appear at certain times and oftei are the cause of wrecks.

ROWLISON TELLS OF THEORY OF GOD IN LIFE OF MANKIND

Not Outside the Universe, for there is no Outside, Says Pastor

"Has the God of Christianity simply become a man?" was the topic of Rev. C. C. Rowlison's sermon at the First Congregational church Sunday.

"From the beginning it has been the essence of Christianity to believe that God is found in Jesus Christ," he said. "Almost from the beginning Christianity has been split up into parties and factions over the interpretation of the meaning of this fact. The New Testament itself shows many signs of opposition to the gnostic heresy. The fathers of the third and fourth centuries were driven to distraction over the Arian heresy. For several centuries the Trinitarian dogmas victoriously held the field, yet many obscure sects maintained an existence in spite of all efforts to stamp out heresy. Since the freer days of the modern period, so-called heretical views of the nature of Christ have thriven abundantly, until the rise of modern science has compelled the thoughtful man of this day to give a new appraisal of the character and nature of the Founder of Christianity.

"The principle of modern science is that we must first establish the fact, and then we must interpret the fact in the light of all other ascertainable facts. The untiring efforts of modern criticism to establish the facts about Jesus Christ and the beginnings of Christianity have been equalled by the infinite labors of scholars upon the interpretation of these facts. Even the intelligent layman today has no excuse for ignorance of the trend of thought regarding the scientific interpretation of the fact of God in Jesus Christ.

Lived Simple Life

"For the one who accepts the scientific principle, it is perfectly clear that Jesus was a Jew from Galilee, who lived a simple but wonderful life of teaching, healing and friendliness, and who died under false accusation as a malefactor in Jerusalem. It is quite as evident a fact that shortly after His death His diciples were convinced that he was alive and was lifted to a high place of authority and power in the councils of God as they conceived God. It is also thoroughly established that the teachings of Jesus, and the interpretation which His disciples placed upon His nature, made such an appeal to the distracted Greeco-Roman world into which the early preachers went, that the most thoughtful men of those days adopted Christianity for their own comfort, and adapted the philosophy which had grown in Greek thought through six centuries into the formulation of the dogmas which have ever since passed as orthodox Christianity.

"As I sought to show last Sunday, a complete acceptance of the principle of natural law leaves no room for a super-natural universe over against a natural universe. God is not outside the universe—he couldn't be, for there is no 'outside'. God is simply over all as its directing principle, in all as that which holds all things together—'in Him all things consist', through all as the infinite and eternal urge which causes the flower to bloom, the fruit to ripen from the bud, the kingdom of God to spring forth as the rich fruitage of all human endeavor.

The Fact of Jesus

"The fact of Jesus Christ, therefore, is a fact in the process of the unfolding of this growing world as we know it. It is also a fact within human form and within human mold. It is not a fact let down into the human from the super-human any more than it is a fact developed up through and out of the human. Like every high fact, this too has somehow blossomed forth from the lower.

"Readers of Swain's book, 'What and Where is God?' will recognize these principles as underlying all that he says. You will remember that he tells of a search in which he failed to find in all the Old Testament a single passage recognizing God within the human life, (p. 114). But the teachings of Jesus are just the unfolding of that one idea. Is not the orthodox supernaturalism founded upon the Old Testament rather than upon the teachings of the Master?

"Swain further says: 'I believe in the God of Jesus and I believe in the Jesus of God', (p. 117), which is his way of summarizing his view that the God of victorious love as Jesus taught him is revealed in the person of Jesus. But how many of us believe in the Jesus of God any more than did the ancient Jews, or the Romans around Pilate? To believe in the Jesus of God would compel us to throw our lives into the service of humanity as Jesus did, and would utterly explode our worldly-prosperous complacency of belief in a supernatural deity that can do whatever he wants to do outside of and apart from us. To believe in the Jesus of God compels us to think of God as practically helpless except as His moral purpose finds its expression within and through us.

Man is Divine

"To quote Swain further: 'So far as we can understand, the sinless man soul lifted to the infinite power would be the same as God.' (P. 76). Therefore, speaking of man as a spiritual being, it is necessary to say that insofar as he lives according to the laws of his moral being, man is divine, and that we know nothing higher than this divinity. In Jesus Christ; in the highest expressions of motherhood; in the noblest forms of devotion to human welfare; even in many imperfect unfoldings of what we call character, we see God alive in human form. Our trouble in discerning God is that we have so long thought of him as a stranger and a foreigner to our realm that we do not recognize him in these homely and blessedly familiar forms.

"A perfect man is one who, with loving intelligence, lives in justice and kindness toward all men. Such a man was Jesus. We believe in God because we see this loving intelligent will constantly embodying itself in the human form of that individual man, or in less degree in other men, but often it is found embodied in the ideals, tendencies and achievements of groups, communities and even races of men. It is this manifest presence of a loving intelligent will, often called the Holy Spirit, that makes us aware, if we stop to think about it and cultivate contacts with it, how tremendously alive God is within our everyday humanity.

Controlling Principle

"In the ordered universe of infinite space, in the progressive unfolding of our more intimate world here on earth through all the processes which we call nature, through that climax of nature which we call man, we are compelled to recognize a controling principle making for righteousness for which we know no better name than that of the everlasting God. And when we wish to speak to Him, we address Him where he is ever seeking communion with us—in our own souls, in the out-pourings of the desires and emotions of a worshipping congregation, in the joys and the aspirations of the family life, in the endeavors of communities and nations in times of crisis, in our reverent awe before the ordered unfolding of all life, in our gasping pause in the presence of truth, goodness and beauty.

"The Supreme God of Christianity always has been, and we think always will be, Jesus Christ. He is our God because He is the highest expression of humanity that we know, and philosophers have been forced to the agreement that they can conceive of no higher possible expression of the divine nature.

"In so accepting God in Christ we neither belittle God—for Christ is to us the assurance of the attainment of that goal toward which the whole creation moves—nor is it an egotistical magnification of the human, for God is calling every one of us to be in truth His child, until all become 'heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ.'"
